Health Bureau, Republic of Examplia (fictional)

Draft Newborn Home Visit Notes (UNREVIEWED)

Working notes from a planning meeting. Deliberately incomplete: used to test that the AI flags gaps.

Danger signs

Health workers should refer newborns who are breathing fast, who have a high fever, or who feel cold to the touch. Babies with early jaundice should also be referred, as should babies who are not feeding properly.

Babies who seem unwell in other ways may need referral depending on the health worker's judgement.

Follow-up

Referred babies should be followed up soon after referral.

Clinical content adapted from: WHO recommendations on maternal and newborn care for a positive postnatal experience. Geneva: World Health Organization; 2022. Licence: CC BY-NC-SA 3.0 IGO. This adaptation was not created by WHO; WHO is not responsible for its content.